DOCAIR IS PROUD TO ANNOUNCE OUR HVAC SERVICE DIVISION!

DocAir was founded in 2002 with a focus on indoor air quality and a commitment to science-based solutions. While we've long been known for our work in building diagnostics, we are thrilled to be rolling out our new HVAC service division.

Our commitment has always been science before sales, and we are continuing to bring this notion to the forefront of our HVAC service division. Through scientific principles and cutting-edge technology, we're able to quickly diagnose and solve air quality problems and provide recommendations in clear, simple terms.

We've been lucky and proud to have established such a loyal following in our 18 years of business so far, and we believe that our new HVAC service division is a logical and exciting next step. We specialize in retrofitting, repairing, and upgrading older buildings so they perform like new, and we also work with architects, developers, and planners when constructing high-performance buildings that can be certified to green standards.

Nothing is more important than the quality of the air we breathe. DocAir is making the world a better place to live, and breathe, one building at a time.
